Hövding AB

Malmö, Sweden

Head of Research

June 2007 - September 2009

I was the first employee at Hövding, the company behind the “invisible” bicycle helmet with the same name. The helmet is a collar that is worn around the neck. It contains a folded up airbag that inflates and protects the user in the event of an accident. Hövding received the 2011 Index Award. [www.hovding.com]

- Responsible for hardware and software development for the accident detection system.
- Developed a real time algorithm, based on machine learning, that takes data from motion sensors as input, and determines if a rider is in an accident. International patent is pending.
- Managed large-scale data collection with stunt actors and students.
- Worked with subcontractors to develop and identify electronic components
- Hired, and managed a team of engineers.

McKinsey & Company

Stockholm, Sweden

Junior Consultant

June 2005 - September 2005

McKinsey is a management consulting firm, advising corporations, banks, and holding companies on strategic and tactical issues. [www.mckinsey.com]

- Worked in a small team to quickly collect and analyze data for tasks such as mergers & acquisitions, procurement, and marketing.
